

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A storage system includes at least one storage medium, at least one controller to control the storage medium, and a communication path to connect the storage medium and the controller in a loop for communication between the controller and the storage medium, wherein a failure diagnosis is performed to locate a failure while performing normal read/write operations.